30 Recognizing subtle signs and symptoms of pediatric cancer

By Paula Barbel, PhD, RN, PNP, and Kathleen Peterson, PhD, RN, PNP-BC

Even though cancer is rare in children and adolescents, it's the leading cause of disease-related deaths among Americans ages 1 to 19. Refresh your knowledge of the elusive signs and symptoms of cancer because early diagnosis and treatment can save young lives.

40 New drugs 2015, part 1

By Daniel A. Hussar, PhD

Learn about seven recently marketed drugs, including a combination product to treat hot flashes and other menopause-associated symptoms, a treatment for erectile dysfunction, and two antiepileptic drugs indicated to help prevent partial-onset seizures.

50 Unmasking Moebius syndrome

By Amy Ellwood Meyer, BSN, RN

Patients born with this rare congenital disorder have a masklike facial expression that impairs social interactions. After learning about treatment options, find out how to support patients through the lifespan.

54 Driving Miss (or Mr.) Daisy

By Joyce O. Hislop, AD, RN

Many family caregivers find themselves driving an older loved one, assisting with activities of daily living, and providing emotional support, sometimes for years. Share the resources and advice given here to help these informal caregivers navigate this rewarding yet stressful role.

60 SHARING

Finding peace in Monet's gardens

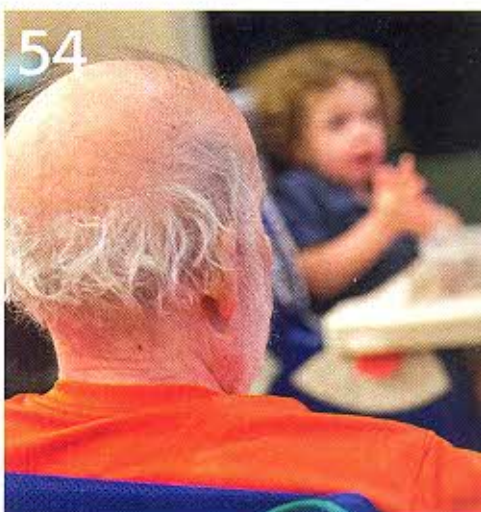

By Suzanne C. Urban, MS, RN-BC

A visit to a beautiful garden evokes a nurse's memories of an inspiring patient.
