CLINICAL EVALUATION & IMPROVEMENT

15 Women's Experiences of a Close Brush With Death and Posttraumatic Growth

Women can experience posttraumatic growth after trauma, and nurses need to be aware of this possibility to aid in the healing and recovery process.

Mary Ellen Doherty & Elizabeth Scannell-Desch

REVIEW

25 A Systematic Review of Phantom Breast Pain/Sensation in Breast Cancer Patients Postmastectomy

Phantom breast pain/sensation may occur in a small percentage of individuals postmastectomy. Future research should examine preventive therapies and pain treatments and be more explicit in the reporting of diversity characteristics.

Elizabeth-Ann R. Viscione & Lisa Weyandt

IN PRACTICE

31 COVID-19 and Pregnancy: Risks and Outcomes

Understanding the effects of SARS-CoV-2 infection during and after pregnancy can help health care providers implement interventions to improve outcomes for pregnant individuals and their newborns.

Cindra Holland, Crystal Hammond & Misty M. Richmond

42 Management of Bipolar Disorder During the Perinatal Period

Bipolar disorder can affect health across the lifespan, especially for pregnant persons and their offspring; interdisciplinary collaboration and monitoring are essential for optimal perinatal outcomes.

Christopher J. Demers, Rebecca Walker, Nicole M. Rossi & Heather M. Bradford

53 CNE Supporting Reproductive Care for Patients Requiring Solid Organ Transplant

The complex health care needs associated with solid organ transplant can draw attention away from reproductive care, leading to knowledge gaps among patients regarding safe conception and contraception.
